

[2.2.4] Certain non-resident companies within the charge to corporation tax (section 25 TCA 1997)

Last updated September 2016

1. Trade carried on through a branch or agency by a non-resident company

Section 25 lays down the scope of the charge to corporation tax for non-resident companies. A non-resident company is not within the charge to corporation tax unless it carries on a trade in the State through a branch or agency (i.e. the concept of “Permanent Establishment”).

Where a non-resident company so carries on a trade, the company is chargeable not only on trading income arising directly or indirectly through or from the branch or agency but also on any other income arising from property or rights used by, or held by or for, the branch or agency and on any chargeable gains attributable to the branch or agency.

A branch or agency is synonymous with a Permanent Establishment (PE) which is the term used in our Double Taxation Agreements. A PE is defined in Article 5 of the OECD Model Tax Convention on Income and on Capital (MTC) as a “fixed place of business through which the business of an enterprise is wholly or partly carried on”.

When examining whether or not a PE exists the relevant treaty should always be consulted as differences can exist between individual treaties and the MTC. For example in the UK/Ireland Double Taxation Agreement a PE includes “a building site or construction or installation project which lasts for more than six months” while in the MTC it is only a PE if it lasts for more than 12 months.

2. Chargeable Profits (Section 25(2)).

The chargeable profits of a non-resident company carrying on a trade in the State through a branch or agency are –

- (a) any trading income arising directly or indirectly through or from the branch or agency,
- (b) any income from property or rights used by, or held by or for, the branch or agency (for example, patent royalties received by the branch), but this shall not include distributions received from companies in the State,
- and
- (c) chargeable gains attributable to the branch or agency.

Distributions received from resident companies are, in most cases, excluded as distributions and are not within the charge to corporation tax by virtue of section 129. There are, however, exceptions to this general rules, for example, sections 726(2) and 727(1) require that distributions by resident companies to a non-resident life assurance company are to be taken into account in computing the liability of the latter company to corporation tax.

In the case of chargeable gains, the mechanism used to bring those gains within the charge to corporation tax is to bring into charge all chargeable gains accruing to a non-resident company which apart from the Corporation Tax Acts would be chargeable to capital gains tax and to exclude gains on the disposals of assets which were not used in or for the purposes of the trade of the branch or agency and which were not used, held or acquired for the purposes of the branch or agency.

Section 1040 provides that the provisions of Sections 1034 to 1039 and 1046, relating to the assessment and charge of income tax on persons not resident in the State are applicable to corporation tax chargeable on companies not resident in the State.

3. Trade not carried out in the State through a branch or agency by a non-resident company

A non-resident company which does not carry on a trade in the State through a branch or agency is chargeable to income tax in respect of income arising from sources within the State. This is also the case where a non-resident company has a branch or agency within the State but has income not attributable to the branch or agency. Similarly, capital gains tax is levied on the chargeable gains of a non-resident company where it has no branch or agency in the State or where, if it has a branch or agency in the State, the gains are not attributable to the branch or agency.

4. Set-off of tax deducted (section 25(3) TCA)

Subject to section 729 (which makes special provisions for overseas life assurance companies), where a non-resident company receives a payment under deduction of income tax and the payment forms part of its income for the purposes of corporation tax, the income tax deducted from the payment is to be set-off against the company's corporation tax liability for the accounting period in which the payment falls. Accordingly, although by virtue of section 21(2)(b) the payment is not chargeable to income tax, the company, unless wholly exempt from corporation tax, is not entitled to claim repayment of the income tax until the corporation tax liability for the particular accounting period has been determined.
